

Amy Staurovsky Randall '90

Amy Staurovsky Randall has had a career many might envy. She has worked for the NBA, the NFL, and NBC Universal. She is on a first-name basis with Beyoncé, John Legend, and Bradley Cooper. Amy graduated from Princeton University with a degree in psychology. Each internship or professional position has led to the next culminating in her current role as Co-Head of the Social Impact Practice and EVP of Marketing and Communications at Propper Daley in California. Propper Daley is an agency that helps individuals, corporations, and non-profits develop their strategies and execution plans to do good in the world.

Over the years, Amy has developed a skill set that helps her create positive change. Her talents have enabled her to help John Legend in his effort to end mass incarceration and to help Bradley Cooper honor his father through a foundation to provide cancer patients ancillary care. She is working with Michele Obama's team to help craft what Mrs. Obama is doing now with adolescent girls' education.

Amy has been committed to issues affecting women and girls. She mentors young women starting their careers. Last spring, she spoke with Villa seniors about the importance of networking and creating a personal brand.

Amy is married to Lawrence Randall. She is the sister of Megan Staurvosky Dusing '92 and Robyn Staurovsky Engels '98. She likes to play tennis, kick box, travel, and spend time with her three nieces.
